

TESOBE/Open Bank Project partners with Mirsis to unlock Open Banking opportunities in Turkey

Berlin, 8 March 2021: As part of TESOBE's strategy of expanding into the Asian market, TESOBE/Open Bank Project announces a strategic partnership with local expert Mirsis to unlock Open Banking opportunities in Turkey.

Turkey's financial services sector is on the verge of experiencing disruptive transformation as the central bank finalises its regulatory framework. Requirements call for implementation via local IT providers, highlighting the need for strategic partnerships to share crucial knowledge.

Combining TESOBE's unique Open Banking infrastructure and wealth of Open Banking implementation experience with Mirsis' indispensable local expertise, this partnership aims to solve technical and regulatory challenges across the Turkish banking sector.

Levent Kutlucan, COO of Mirsis said: "Perfect conditions exist to achieve excellent track results in Open Banking with TESOBE as partners. In the long run, we are very keen to set a trusted and valuable relationship/partnership with TESOBE through shared values. This alliance makes us smile to see the brilliant future and highly effective relationship between Mirsis and TESOBE. We intend to conduct our business and alliance in a way that not only meets but exceeds the expectations of our customers, business partners, shareholders, and employees."

Simon Redfern, CEO, TESOBE noted: "We're excited to have this opportunity to work with Mirsis. They have a unique perspective into the local market as well as the vision required to guide banks through Open Banking. Open Banking experts must combine their expertise with local business leaders to deliver a straightforward and relevant open banking implementation experience. And that's exactly what Mirsis and TESOBE plan to do for Turkish banks as they aim for compliance and beyond in the next year."
